And to-day, in this great presence, I wish to pledge to your excellency what you may say to our Holy Father, when you shortly see him. I wish to express to you with all my heart, with all my soul, with all my being, the fidelity, the loyality, the reverence we have and possess for our Holy Father, the representative of Christ on earth.

"I also wish to say to-day to your excellency that this pallium also is more than a bond. It is a cincture of charity, of kindly affection toward the bishops of this province. We are all united as brothers in the Lord. We are ready to serve as one.

Loyal to Church and Country

"We have here a glorious province, all united together with the great commonwealth of New Jersey and the Empire State of New York, with nearly four millions Catholic people, to be loyal to the Church and in serving God, and in being loyal to the Church they are serving America, and they are loyal among men to American traditions, American principles, and American institutions.

"So the service we shall render is, indeed, a catholic service, and we will be blessed in that with all kinds of blessings, which we hope to obtain from Almighty God, for the welfare of our beloved land and for the progress and advancement of Holy Mother the Church, so that when our day shall come, when we are called away for judgment upon our work, may, indeed, those who sit here to-day in this sanctuary, as well as myself, be found worthy before the Lord."
